

The local family illness radar

SICK SEASON IS COMING

Know before it hits home

Become an Ickly Ambassador

Help every family at your school know what's going around, before it reaches their house.

WHAT IS IT?

Ickly is a free, community-powered health radar for local parents. Families get a real-time heads-up when strep, stomach bugs, lice and flu start circulating in nearby schools and daycares. Ambassadors are the parents and local voices who bring Ickly to their school community, in a flexible voluntary role that takes an hour or two a month.

WHO WE'RE LOOKING FOR

- Class parents and room parents
- PTA / PTO members and volunteers
- Teachers and staff who believe in the mission
- Local community organizers
- Parents with a voice on social media
- Early Ickly users who already share it with friends

WHY JOIN

- Personal Ambassador Hub with share kits and posters
- Direct line to Ickly's founder
- Early access to new features
- Community-building experience at an early-stage startup
- A network of parents who care about local families

WHY IT MATTERS

Instead of waiting for delayed administrative emails, parents log anonymous symptoms in seconds, so every family can prepare, protect their schedules, and keep kids healthy. The more families who join, the earlier everyone gets the warning.

Scan to learn more and apply

The application takes about five minutes, and Ickly's founder reads every single one. Or visit us directly at:

ickly.com/ambassador